

I am deeply concerned about the proposed relaxation of restrictions on media ownership in the United States. Our democracy and safety increasingly depend upon having multiple channels of information and open media access, particularly at the local level. We see how the national media have underreported your current deliberations and we can expect even less reporting on critical issues, if the media become even more consolidated. I encourage you NOT to relax the current standards.

Sincerely,

John Roberts